

Zeppelin presents wide range of products at Eurosatory Military Show

Zeppelin has been present at the Eurosatory Show, the largest international military exhibition, which took place in Paris on June 16-20. Zeppelin showed a large range of their diversified military products which had been displayed on the stands of different companies.

In addition to the indoor stand in the German Pavilion, Zeppelin had a double-side expandable 20ft shelter on the outdoor area. This lightweight shelter does not only offer the possibility of a semi-hydraulic extension mechanism – it can also be delivered with an electromagnetic protection (attenuation level of > 45dB between 100 kHz – 1 GHz).

The TEP90 decontamination shelter that was displayed on the IVECO stand is a joint development of Kaercher Futuretech and Zeppelin. The system consists of three different shelter modules for the decontamination of persons, personal equipment and materials/vehicles.

Finally, the artillery detection radar system "COBRA" of the Euro-Art Consortium consisting of Thales, EADS and Lockheed-Martin was shown on the THALES stand. Zeppelin is the supplier of the shelter cell with integrated splinter protection.
